

Archery Classifications may be gained and Archery GB produces classification tables for both. There are 6 classification levels: 3rd Class, 2nd Class, 1st Class, Bowman (BM), Master Bowmar. You will need to shoot 3 scores at a particular level to be awarded that classification. Once you have achieved a classification, you will be able to shoot for the next level. The tables for achieving classifications for compound rounds (Ladies/Gents), showing the required scores for each level.

Imperial and Metric rounds. These tables define score levels for each round which denote a classification (MB) and Grand Master Bowman (GMB). The highest two, Master Bowman and Grand Master Bowman, attain a certain classification, you can never go back and claim a lower classification. You can see the required scores for each round to achieve a set level, are set out below (Updated April 2014):

corresponding skill level that archers can achieve.

Bowman, can only be obtained from scores shot at record status competitions. Achieving Bow hold different classifications for different bow types.

man puts you in the top 15% of UK archers, Master Bowman in the top 4% and Grand Master B owman in the top 1%.
